Station(s) work closely with the Journalism School of Oklahoma State University keeping an open dialogue with educators and students about potential career opportunities with both the company and broadcasting in general. Currently we employ 6 students from Oklahoma State University.

Station(s) have established both paid and un-paid internship programs. Currently there are 6 college students employed by the stations on a part time basis. These employees also help spread the word to other potential hires on and around campus.

Station(s) did conduct tours of its studios during the year. Staff answered many questions about opportunities with in the company as well as broadcasting in general.

Station(s) participated in Oklahoma Broadcasters Association Job Fair at their annual convention March 2017

Both management and employees are always looking for new and better ways to seek employees for both full and part time work. The management and staff are very active in their communities and are always on the look out for potential applicants for rare full time openings.
